Governor Johnson Defiant

It has been reported that Governor Johnson of California was disposed to accept the administration view with regard to the proposed anti-land holding bill in California. It was even reported that he had agreed to veto such a bill if it passed the legislature. Any such idea as this, however, is absolutely dispelled by the message which Governor Johnson sent to the country on Monday night defining his position and the position of the legislature with regard to that legislation. The gist of his statement is that California will do as it pleases about this, and the national government must keep its hands off. The statement from the governor also sets forth legislation enacted in a good many states of the union on precisely the same lines that California now proposes; and the question reasonably and naturally arises, why should there be such an uproar about California enacting this sort of legislation when nothing was said about other states which did the same? The answer would seem to be that California has been belligerent on this question, has been stroking Japan the wrong way for years, and anything that California does in supposed restriction of Japanese rights is more closely watched and more keenly resented than in the case of any other state. Still, as Governor Johnson says, so far as the ethics, legality and morality of the case are concerned California must be judged on this question precisely the same as other states; and the state is quite within its rights when it does nothing more radical than other states have done without question, and when it is careful to keep within the provisions of the treaties between this country and other nations. And this is exactly what President Wilson in his reply to Governor Johnson asks to have done.

After all, the question is not a particularly difficult one, either in ethics or in law. California is bound, precisely the same as other states are bound, by treaties made in pursuance of the constitution by the government of the United States with foreign governments. Such treaties, like as the constitution itself, are the "supreme law of the land." If any state undertakes to legislate so as to encroach upon the provisions of a treaty duly ratified and exchanged, a case can easily be made to present to the supreme court of the United States to test the question whether the legislation does indeed violate that treaty or not. Fortunately, our legal machinery is expressly adapted to the settlement of such a case. The supreme court of the United States is a tribunal of such dignity, such impartiality, and such recognized standing among all nations of the earth that neither Japan nor any other country would have any reason to doubt that exact justice would be rendered in any given case by that court; and inasmuch as the Japanese government has announced its intention to bring a suit in that court to determine the validity of our naturalization laws under which naturalization is denied to Japanese, it would be quite in line with the Japanese endeavor, to bring another suit to invalidate any law that might be passed by California which Japan may consider to be violative of Japanese treaty rights in this country. There is no occasion in any of this international complication to indulge in any bluster or to give out any threats. A perfect remedy is easily available to the Japanese as a nation, or to any individual Japanese who may consider himself wronged either by our naturalization laws or by the prospective land legislation of California. So there is no reason why any individual or any nation should lose temper over the proposed legislation of California.

At the same time, one cannot but wonder what sort of an answer Governor Johnson of California would have given had Colonel Roosevelt been president and had undertaken to interfere against the passage of such legislation by California, as he undoubtedly would have undertaken to interfere. We wonder if Governor Johnson would have taken the same defiant attitude that he takes now, or whether he would have quailed, as Roosevelt compelled the school board of San Francisco to quail, at his insolent, impudent, and meddlesome interference with regard to Japanese attendance at the San Francisco public schools. It is possible that Governor Johnson's answer to Colonel Roosevelt would have been precisely the same as that which he now makes to President Wilson; but it is also conceivable that his answer might have been not only different, but in place of defiance would have indicated obedience.

The Nevada Bar association will receive a serious setback if two cases now ready for trial in Reno are proven. One attorney has sued a brother practitioner for libel because the defendant claimed the plaintiff should be in jail. The defendant in turn has sued the plaintiff for libel. Probably a compromise will be the result.

Sympathy will soon be due to be expressed for the government printers who will be forced to set several hundred speeches on the tariff.

Another sure sign of spring. Coats and vests are being discarded.

CAUSE OF THE GRIPPE

How to Escape Its Dangerous After Effects.

With so much gripe prevalent this winter a few words of advice regarding its cause and treatment will not be out of place.

Gripe is an infectious disease easily taken when the system is in a tired or run-down condition.

The best means of prevention are to keep the blood in good healthy condition, and if the system gets into a weak, run-down condition, take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic.

A lady from Long Branch, N. J., says "Gripe left me in a nervous, weakened, run-down condition. After taking three bottles of Vinol I am better and stronger than I have been for years, and I cheerfully recommend Vinol to all who have suffered from the gripe and need strength." (Name furnished on request.)

We have never sold in our store such a valuable strength creator and health restorer for the convalescent, the weak and run-down as Vinol, and your money will be returned if it does not do all we claim for it.—Miners' Drug Store, Inc., Tonopah, Nev.
